the United States, including Highlands, Hardee, and DeSoto Counties has been a source of concern to local health care "A key feature providers for several years now. of the DMCP is Studies have shown that the prevalence of diabetes has a registry that increased by 33% over the last provides quality decade as a result of an increasingly sedentary lifestyle, the epireports by both demic of obesity, the growth of ethnic groups at risk for the disindividual ease and the aging of the popupatient and sue the Heartland Rural practice."

lation. To help address this issue the Heartland Rural Health Network, Inc. received a Small Health Care Provider Quality Improvement grant from the Federal Health Resources & Services Administration, Office of Rural Health Policy. The grant is for a three year period totaling $300,000. The purpose of this grant is to improve patient care and chronic disease outcomes by assisting rural primary care providers with the implementation of quality improvement initiatives using the chronic care model and electronic patient registries (EPR). EPR's capture information on specific conditions and has a population-based focus.

Over the past two years HRHN has successfully implemented the Florida Academy of Family Physician's Diabetes Master

Clinician Program (DMCP) with the assistance of the DMCP's Medical Director, Dr. Edward Shahady, at eight medical practices in Highlands, Hardee and DeSoto Counties. A key feature of the DMCP is it's EPR that provides quality assessment reports by both individual patient and practice aggregate indicators of achievement for diabetes and cardiovascular quality goals. Only 30 to 45% of patients with diabetes achieve 1 or more of the American Diabetes Association goals for the quality indicators of hemoglobin A1C, low density lipoprotein cholesterol (LDL), and blood pressure (BP). And only 7% of patients achieve goal levels in all 3 indicators at any given time. The DMCP's EPR provides an opportunity for patients to see how well they are doing in achieving their diabetes goals through patient "report cards" that use patient oriented language to inform them of their goals and reasons for obtaining tests. The EPR also provides reports that indicate how well a practice is doing in achieving goals compared to all practices utilizing the EPR. HRHN will now have an opportunity to not only focus on diabetes but also work with local providers to address quality improvement strategies relating to cardiovascular disease outcomes.

"Being able to use an EPR to track the achievement of quality indicators at a provider and patient level can ultimately reduce health complications and costs," said Kathy MacNeill, the DMCP's Associate Director.

Area Medical Offices Become Centers for Diabetes Excellence

Complete Family Medical Center, Samaritan's Touch Care Center and Pioneer Medical Center were named Centers for Diabetes Excellence and their clinicians were awarded certification as Diabetes Master Clinicians by the Florida Academy of Family Physicians, in conjunction with the Heartland Rural Health Network for their quality work in diabetes. Dr. Edward Shahady, founder and direc- cians include: Kendra Hall, tor of the Diabetes Master Clinician Program (DMCP) and Kathy MacNeill, Associate Director of the DMCP, presented certificates to the offices, clinicians and staff who helped achieve the goals of the program. The DMCP was initiated in 2003 by the Florida Academy of Family Physicians Foundation to help clinicians ensure excellence in their care of diabetes. The program uses an internet based disease registry to produce patient and practice report cards. These three practices achieved well above the registry averages for many of the quality criteria, and had overall improvement of 10% or more in the measured areas. The diabetes criteria scores include: Hemoglobin A1c less than 7, Blood pressure less than 130/80, and LDL Cholesterol less than 100. Other significant criteria include documentation of yearly foot exams, yearly urine micro albumin testing, and yearly eye exams. The certified Diabetes Master Clini-DO; Luis Pena, MD; Edwin C. Pigman, MD; William J. Gill PA-C; Lauren Canary, PA -C; and Keith Coker, PAD-C. The staff at the centers awarded certificates as Diabetes Master Clinician Associates were Susan Hall, RN; Angela Long, LPM; Angie Greene; Brianne Morrow; Francine Whitman, RN; Tamara Cruz, MA; Diana Furr; Tammy Hellein, MA; Tawnya Massey, MA; Sylvia Belmares, LPN; Paula Hartley, LPN; April Lozano and Tammy Brown. Local Groups Gets Grant To Fight Youth Substance Abuse

Health Network, Inc. and Drug Free Highlands (DFH) received a $625,000 grant to fight substance abuse among the youth in Highlands County. The Substance Abuse & Mental Health Administration awarded the five year Drug

The Heartland Rural

Free Communities Support program grant. These program grants help drug free community coalitions strengthen collaboration among community partners and help prevent and reduce substance abuse. It's based on the fundamental concept that local problems need local solutions. DFH is comprised of community leaders, parents, youth, teachers, religious and fraternal organizations, health care and business professionals, law enforcement and media. "We will now have an opportunity to provide more community awareness and support to ensure a drug free Highlands," said Jacqueline Rawlings, DFH Chair.

As delegates traveled through India meeting clinicians and people with diabetes, they were impressed that their goals and many challenges for diabetes care were the same – improving the lives of those with the disease.

India is the second most populous country in the world with over 1.18 billion people more than a sixth of the world's population. Since diabetes is a relatively new disease to the population, often the diagnosis of diabetes in India is made at the discovery of complications and screening with early identification being limited. With an extensive and variable geography, more than two thousand ethnic groups, every major religion, and over 1400 languages, many challenges exist to developing a national health policy for addressing the burgeoning diabetes epidemic. The Indian clinicians discussed this openly and talked about

The Indian clinicians discussed this openly and talked about some of the national efforts to address this problem. In addition, to embracing many of the Western approaches to chronic disease, Indian clinicians and patients are incorporating traditional Indian practices such as yoga, acupuncture, and Ayruveda practices. As they gained understanding of the use of these additional tools, delegates had discussions about how some of these practices could be useful in their own diabetes education practices. They concluded that globally the goals of India's and Western treatment of marize her trip, Ms. MacNeill stated, "We hear about different cultures, but to truly see one up close and personal was an amazing experience. Diabetes is the same all over the world, but the way we treat it differs greatly. We can all learn from each other."

Local Healthy Choices Education Continues Through State Grant

The Heartland Rural Health Network, Inc. was one of 13 organizations in Florida recently awarded a grant from the Florida Department of Health to provide community-based abstinence education program services to local teenagers in Highlands and Polk Counties. A total of $1.95 million in statewide funding was made available for awarded grant programs through federal Title V funds. HRHN received $ 150,000.00 per year for four years to implement several local initiatives in close partnership with the

Tampa General Hospital Reaches Milestone: Transition from paper to electronic medical records goes smoothly

On May 2, Tampa General Hospital reached a milestone when the Family Care Center-Kennedy and Outpatient Rehabilitation Services at Tampa General's staff through live video South Armenia Clinic were the first to go live with Epic, the new Electronic Medical Records (EMR) system. Overall, the switch from paper records to electronic medical records went smoothly, and despite a short power outage at the Kennedy location, the Epic system did not lose any data. During the initial weeks of the transition to the EMR system, teams of Epic and Information Technologies staff are monitoring the system in a Command Center nearby. They'll be able to talk to conferencing and investigate and correct any glitches that may occur with the system. Patient registration time has also been reduced since they only have to fill out one to two forms during each visit. "It is always amazing to watch the profession of users during an Epic go-live," said Scott Arnold, vice president of Information Technologies. "By day three of our go-live, the speed of patient flow, from registration through discharge improved nearly 400% from the first day. Within a few days, nearly all Epic users demonstrated speed and accuracy with the system." Having the "onepatient one chart" will help improve efficiency and patient satisfaction.

The Health Buddy hooks up to a phone line and remits vital information back to the hospital. This helps reduce office visits after a patient is released from the hospital.

Florida Hospital's Telehealth —an electronic device about the size of a book—gives doctors critical updates on health status indicators without the patients ever having to leave home. The Health Buddy hooks up to the patient's telephone line to transmit data. The unit is equipped to take vital signs, oxygen saturation levels, blood sugar levels, and asks the patient 12 questions via a screen that are based on the patient's specific disease program. The Health Buddy then remits the collected information back to hospital staff. The disease programs supported by this unit include heart failure, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, hypertension, and diabetes. So far at least 100 patients who visited Florida Hospital have benefitted from this program which began over a year ago. Most patients have the units in their home for 60 days and most of them are used for the elderly population. Information collected is sent on a secure phone line. The patient isn't required to use the phone at all and the unit doesn't increase the phone bill. Patients using a Health Buddy unit are more apt to meet their health care goals through better compliance and a reduction in the number of ER visits and hospitalizations since health care providers are able to catch symptoms quicker.

Network Receives Winn Dixie Foundation Grant

Heartland Rural Health Network, Inc. is proud to announce the Winn-Dixie Foundation has donated $4,500 to help support their Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Outreach Program. The purpose of this outreach program is to assist low income seniors in Highlands, Hardee, and DeSoto Counties apply for Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits, more commonly known as food stamps. According to the Florida Department of Elder Affairs, nearly 67% of potentially eligible seniors in the tri county area are currently not accessing SNAP benefits. Although there are many reasons why participation rates are lower for seniors, the most common factor that program staff hear from individuals is the difficulty and confusion with the application process. Through the Network's SNAP Outreach Program staff is available to assist seniors in Highlands, Hardee, and De-Soto Counties through the application process and teach them how to utilize the online application and steps for recertification. "The Winn-Dixie Foundation realizes the importance of giving back to the communities we serve, especially in times of need," said Mary Kellmanson, president of Winn-Dixie Foundation. "For more than 85 years, Winn-Dixie has been known as the company with a heart. We continue that tradition by donating funds from our Foundation to worthy organizations, such as Heartland Rural Health Network, that share our goal of helping to improve the lives of families in each neighborhood we serve." To learn more about the Winn-Dixie Foundation, please visit www.winndixie.com. To contact the Network's SNAP

MomCare: A Special Medicaid Program for Pregnant Women

The MomCare program's goal is to improve birth outcomes and reduce infant mortality by increasing access to care for pregnant women through a simplified Medicaid application. Once pregnancy is determined, women may qualify for this special health insurance program. The family's income must be within 185% of the federal poverty guidelines, which is slightly above the standard Medicaid guidelines. They can apply for this program, even if they or other family members are working. Once enrolled, the program covers medical care and hospitalization during the pregnancy. It may also cover health care bills up to three months before enrollment. There is no cost for this coverage. Additionally, the infant may also be eligible for free insurance after they are born. For more information please contact the Healthy Start Coalition of Hardee, Highlands, and Polk Counties MomCare staff at 863-298-4481.

Grant Provides Breast Health Education

Many low-income, underserved women in rural communities do not have regular access to primary care physicians and therefore may not be receiving consistent, valuable messages on the importance of being pro-active in their breast health. Through a $10,000 Florida Breast Cancer Research Foundation Grant. Heartland Rural Health Network will utilize three strategies to provide breast health education to women in Highlands and Hardee Counties. Activities planned include implementing "Shop Talk" whereby the Network's Community Health Workers (CHW) identify local merchants, health providers, and community venues where constituents visit and provide them with culturally and linguistically appropriate educational materials and displays that are strategically placed near cash registers or waiting areas that encourages conversations with the shop owners/staff and customers and family members on breast health topics. CHWs will also use a culturally and linguistically appropriate facilitation guide from the Prevent Cancer Foundation to provide one hour educational sessions to women and their family members on the value of mammography screening, clinical breast exams, and breast self exams as well as general information on breast health topics during home visits. Lastly, CHWs will participate in multiple health fairs to distribute educational materials and resource guides to community members. The grant starts in September, 2011 and will support activities for one vear.
